The Program in Nursing Science invites you to attend the Nursing Science Translational Research Seminar Series sponsored by Robert Wood Johnson Foundation featuring Pamela H. Mitchell, PhD, RN, FAHA, FAAN, Professor of Nursing, University of Washington presenting "Thinking in Circles: Interdisciplinary Clinical and Translational Research." Dr. Mitchell will focus on the cyclical nature of translational research from idea to impact on people’s health. She will emphasize the varying perspectives of clinical and translational investigators from multiple professions and disciplines and how they come together in developing team science. Dr. Mitchell will illustrate with examples from her own team’s work in recovery from brain injury and the University of Washington’s Institute for Translational Health Sciences.

Wednesday January 30th, 2013 - 12:00 Noon Lecture

Location: CalIT2 Auditorium, UC Irvine
California Institute for Telecommunications and Information Technology Building
Parking available in Lot 12B or AIRB Structures

Pamela H. Mitchell, PhD, RN, FAHA, FAAN is Robert G. and Jean A. Reid Dean in Nursing (interim), Professor of Biobehavioral Nursing and Health Systems, Adjunct Professor, Department of Health Services and founding Director of the Center for Health Sciences Interprofessional Education and Research at the University of Washington. Her research and teaching focus on hospital care delivery systems, effective management of clinical care systems, biobehavioral interventions for patients with acute and chronic cardio-cerebrovascular disease, and outcomes of interprofessional education. Her work has been funded by several institutes and centers of the National Institutes of Health, Bureau of Health Professions, Health Resources Services Administration, and the Josiah Macy Jr. Foundation. She received a BSN from the University of Washington, an MS with a focus on medical-surgical clinical specialization from the University of California, San Francisco, and a Ph.D. in Health Care Systems Ecology from the University of Washington.

There is no cost to attend, but please RSVP to NSEVENTS@UCI.EDU.